New Hampshire Republicans.

CONCORD, May 8.—The republican convention to elect delegates to the national convention met to day and was called to order by J. H. Gallinger, who in a short address congratulated the party on the favorable outlook for the coming campaign. Reference to Blaine was greeted with continued applause. Henry E. Burnham of Manchester was elected chairman. Burnham made a speech in which he reviewed the history and achievements of the republican party and its great benefit to the country, while the democratic party has been controlled by Grover Cleveland and three other presidents of the south, who by pretence and hypocrisy, subserviency to the free traders of the south and shameful surrendering of great interests entrusted to its keeping, had by supplying free whisky to the rum element of our large cities and other business interests and which has been denounced by the democratic party as pauperizing as bounty, established a policy of this country, under which it has enjoyed its greatest prosperity.

The platform denounces the administration for its tariff policy; for its veto message; for its "pretence" of civil service reform. The platform is particularly severe upon the wool clause in the tariff bill. It denounces the Mills tariff bill. It denounces the scenic party for identifying itself with the interests of liquor dealers throughout the country and instructs the delegates this day elected to Chicago to use every honorable effort to place in the nation's ticket that will command the general confidence, defy every assault, be resistless at the polls, a ticket that in its triumph, which we unhesitatingly predict, shall restore the government to the only party that in national aims and just in its purposes.

Person Cheney, Jacob H. Gallinger and A. Tuttle and Alfred T. Batchelder were chosen delegates to the national convention. They are uninstructed. The convention adjourned.

Delaware Democrats.

WILMINGTON, May 8. The democratic state convention assembled at Dover at 10 a. m. Robert Hill was made permanent chairman. The following delegates to St. Louis were chosen: L. C. Hegerti, E. R. Cochran, W. A. C. Hazlette, C. J. Harrington, W. F. Allen and W. H. Stevens. The platform renews the pledges of the democratic party of Delaware to the principles of the party, indorses the administration in the course of Bayard as secretary of state, indorses President Cleveland's position on the tariff and his opposition to monopolistic trusts; favors his renomination, and closes as follows:

Resolved, That we indorse and favor the passage of the bill now before congress known as the "Mills tariff bill."

The convention is harmonious and enthusiastic.

Delegates for Blaine.

TRENTON, May 8. The republican convention to nominate candidates to represent the Twenty-fourth congressional district unanimously adopted a resolution endorsing James G. Blaine, directing the delegates representing this district in the national convention to vote by all honorable means to secure his nomination in event of this delegation for president.

Chairman Jones Interviewed.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Chairman B. F. Jones, of the republican national committee, in an interview with a Tribune reporter to-night, emphatically denied the reported interview with him sent out from Pittsburg last Saturday night, in which he was made to say that Blaine would not support Allison, Sherman or Gresham for the nomination; that Blaine was personally friendly to those gentlemen, but politically they were wide apart, and had not received any letter from Blaine since the letter of withdrawal, which he said, had certainly withdrawn Blaine as a candidate, but if the convention should nominate him it would be another thing, that is the action of the convention. Asked about the truth of the letter printed by the Nashville American, Mr. Jones said he never saw or heard of such a letter, and classified the story as a par with many others now going about.

[illegible] S. B. Elkins was interviewed by the Tribune in regard to the same letter and said that no such letter was ever written and no letter of the kind sent by Mr. Blaine. Therefore it was not known by members of the committee as a whole. We would have been only too glad to have seen Blaine and Conkling on friendly terms. The whole statement is a fraud.

The Letter That Never Came.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 8. — The Avalanche prints an interview with A. W. Hughes, jr., chairman of the republican state executive committee, regarding the failure of Roscoe Conkling to publicly support James G. Blaine in the presidential canvass. Hughes gives facts, never before made public, to show that soon after Blaine was nominated, Senator Chaffee, realizing the importance of securing the support of Conkling for Blaine in New York come east, and went to New York for that especial purpose that he, as the result of a prolonged and confidential conference with Conkling, secured from the latter the promise that if Blaine would write him a personal letter to that effect, Conkling would support the ticket. Chaffee returned to Washington and informed Blaine of Conkling's promise, and Blaine wrote the letter as requested. Chaffee, elated at his success with Conkling, took the letter with which left New York after midnight. He was given and went to see Blaine at his home in Maine. The situation was explained, and Blaine wrote the letter to Mr. Conkling. This letter was given to Walker Blaine to be delivered by him in person to Conkling as a delicate compliment, and Chaffee, returned to that his mission was successful, disappeared from the scene, and anxiously awaited the publication of the letter. Conkling, however, never received the letter, and Chaffee, upon investigation, found that Walker Blaine had returned the letter to his father, Mr. Blaine, who kept it. Conkling's friends, when they learned the facts, were astounded, and the letter was never published. Hughes says that a syndicate composed of a local banker and two wealthy merchants are practically in control of all the corn in sight. With few exceptions, shippers and receivers dull their buying for them, consequently their movements have attracted but little attention. The syndicate propose to keep corn well up to 60 cents for all the months up to the marketing of the new crop.

Michigan Delegates.

GRAND RAPIDS, May 8.—District delegates to Chicago were chosen by five districts here to day as follows: Fifth, A. B. Watson, Cyril P. Brown; Sixth, William McPherson, William B. McCreery; Seventh, Edgar Weeks, Harrison Geo. Smith, E. O. Shaw, George W. Crawford; Eleventh, Sam Stephenson, Perry Hannah.

The Pope's Rescript.

DUBLIN, May 8.—In accordance with the request of Catholic members of parliament, the lord mayor of Dublin has called a meeting for May 17, to discuss the pope's rescript.

The National League meeting held at Sligo to-day adopted resolutions condemning the pope's rescript and pledging those present to submit themselves to Parnell's guidance.

Arizona Democrats.

PHOENIX, Arizona, May 8.—The territorial democratic convention last night elected Richard Herndon of Prescott, delegate to the national convention at St. Louis. The convention passed endorsing the administration.

Illinois Democrats Elected.

SPRINGFIELD, May 8.—The Second and Seventh congressional district republicans to-day selected delegates to the national convention and instructed them for Gresham or Harlan for presidential candidate.

A riot occurred at Dunmanway, Ireland, yesterday as the police were removing a number of prisoners to Cork. Police charged upon the rioters and used their batons freely.

UNIVERSITY CLUB.

The First Dinner of the Colorado Springs University Club.

Passes Off Successfully at The Antlers Last Evening.

Eloquent Address Delivered by His Excellency Gov. Adams.

Followed by Short Speeches from Several Other Gentlemen.

The first annual dinner of the University club of this city, which was originated a few weeks ago, was given last evening at The Antlers hotel and passed off very pleasantly. The occasion possessed more than passing interest from the fact that the club had, as its honored guests, Governor and Mrs. Adams.

The ladies wore elegant toilets and most of the gentlemen appeared in full evening dress. About half past eight o'clock the company, which numbered about sixty-five, entered The Antlers dining room, which had been especially arranged for the occasion. The tables were tastefully decorated with flowers, and the dinner, of which the following is the menu, was admirably served by Mr. [illegible] and a corps of competent waiters.

MENU.

[illegible]

Fruits [illegible]

Hors d'Oeuvres.

Small patties a la Monselet.

Broiled brook trout.

Potatoes, Parisienne.

Relish.

Tenderloin of beef, a la Macedoine.

Entree.

Croquettes of sweetbreads, mushroom sauce.

New potatoes in cream.

Asparagus, Hollandaise sauce.

Roman punch.

Roast [illegible] on toast.

Tomato and lettuce mayonnaise.

Vanilla ice cream. Coffee. Assorted cake.

The dinner was highly creditable to The Antlers chef. Between the courses college songs were sung, and several addresses were delivered.

Professor Byington, the president of the club, who sat at the head of the table, with Governor Adams on his right, presided. Mr. Byington, in delivering the opening address of the evening, said:

The committee having in charge the arrangement of the literary portion of this feast courteously assigned me a place on the programme as president of this club. As I shall have an opportunity of speaking to you again in September, I shall not occupy much of your time. I may say, however, that Colorado Springs is to be congratulated upon the formation of such a club. Most large cities in the east have clubs whose membership is composed of alumni and alumnæ of the larger colleges, but Colorado Springs is, as far as I know, the only small city where a club has been organized whose membership is composed of graduates of different chartered institutions.

This club is quite representative in its membership, its graduates showing degrees either in law, science, medicine, art or theology. All the principal colleges are represented, including Yale, Harvard, Dartmouth, Columbia, Michigan, Wellesley, Vassar, Holyoke, etc., some members hailing from institutions of learning in Canada, Scotland, England, Germany, etc. The objects of the club, as expressed in the preamble to the constitution, are to develop the social and intellectual life of its members discussing the live topics of the day in the domain of politics, education, etc. It is hoped that the deliberations of the club may eventually mould public opinion in this city upon the topics already mentioned. College graduates who come here as strangers often feel the want of kindred, sympathetic fellowship. This club offers a means of becoming acquainted with those of similar tastes and may be the means of forming pleasant friendships. The club is honored by the presence of the chief executive of the state upon whom I will now call to address you.

Governor Adams in rising was greeted with hearty applause. The theme of his remarks was "University Life." He spoke without notes, in an easy and fluent manner. The following are his remarks in full.

No man is so strong that he cannot be made stronger by cultivation, but training and intellectual culture cannot alone make a strong man. Unless there is a basis of manhood and capacity, the greatest college or university cannot make an ideal man any more than we can fashion, in the record of our lives by writing our achievements upon the sand. The mental discipline and attainments of schools and universities may give to incapacity and weakness an external finish, a superficial glamour; but, at its best, it is but an intellectual mirage, a caricature upon manhood, a burlesque image of that model which was given for man's guidance. Like fine raiment and rich jewels, a university diploma can give to ugliness an appearance of respectability and fashion, but every wind of adversity displaces the silken garments and reveals the crooked limbs and moral deformity which art and cultivation cannot cure. While the schools of men will give a crutch to mental lameness, and will sometimes carry infirmity and feebleness to transitory success and victory, there is, in the university of life, no degrees or diplomas for the weak and infirm. In the warfare of life, where contend those who have been denied the armor of a higher education there is no place for ride, the billows and gather the fruits that ripen solely upon the crests of human effort.

Brains, courage and integrity are the qualities that capture the honors in the university of life, and it is these virtues in their native, rugged strength that have enabled the graduates from the college of experience to make such a deep impress upon the annals of history.

The man whose learning comes through the channel of books, leisure and learned professors is more rounded and complete and perhaps more attractive and entertaining than the life of those whose wisdom has been garnered in the rough school of experience—gleaned from the [illegible] of life, but training and intellectual culture cannot alone make a strong man. JOHN CAMPBELL,
Secretary. Chairman.

The people of East Denver had an exciting school election Monday. Nine hundred and sixty-eight votes were cast. It is a good sign when the people turn out to a school election.

We print this morning a letter from a gentleman living in this city, who knows Mr. Fuller, the nominee of President Cleveland for chief justice. He not only practiced at the bar with him, but had an intimate acquaintance, and his testimony is therefore valuable.

It is said that the Indiana delegates will go over to Gresham after the first ballot. If this is true, Gresham has the best chance of receiving the nomination. The republicans can win if they lose New York but carry Indiana and either New Jersey or Connecticut in addition. This will have a good deal of weight with the convention.

The Pueblo Chieftain opened the spring campaign yesterday by printing a special edition of the paper, full of very valuable information regarding Pueblo and the state. With the paper were three sheets of illustrations on book paper, showing the chief buildings in the city. Among these buildings the Colorado Coal and Iron company and the Smelting company gave the best idea of the amount of business done at Pueblo. Pueblo and the Chieftain are booming.

The Denver News of yesterday said that a movement was on foot to nominate ex-Senator Thurman as vice president on the democratic ticket. If Senator Thurman would accept this position, it ought to be awarded to him. There is no democrat now living to whom that party is under such great obligations. In whatever position he has been placed, he has reflected credit on his party and strength- ened it in public esteem. As the dispatch stated, the fact that he is a very old man should not interfere. He is in the full possession of his faculties and can discharge the duties of his office. Though seventy-five years of age, he is still three years younger than one of Ohio's representatives in the United States senate, Henry B. Payne. Thurman really ought to have had the nomination of his party for the presidency in 1876.

Mr. George R. Buckman, the chairman of the advertising committee of the board of trade, is about to issue a list of hotels, leading boarding houses and restaurants, giving the number that can be accommodated, rates etc. It will be impossible in this circular to mention every boarding house but these fobbers will state that a more complete list will be found at Mr. Buckman's office for the information of any who may call. Those who choose to have their names entered on this list can do so by leaving their address number of rooms, and price per week or board, at box 1005, No. 16 North Tejon street. He will also keep a list of all houses in this city in which there are rooms for rent. This branch will be of great assistance to tourists and also to those who wish to make this city a permanent residence. Mr. Buckman's office is [illegible] houses or rooms to rent. The [illegible] Buckman's office.

[illegible] bribery. The Rhode Island republican convention has just passed resolutions condemning the Journal for making these charges. This is a bad year for such an act. Twenty years ago the democrats hardly thought it worth while to nominate a ticket. The state was so unanimously republican. Under the corrupt rule of the leaders the party has grad- ually grown weaker until now the majority is a very narrow one. The attempt of the party to half way endorse this corruption by condemning the Journal will further weaken the hold of the party on the respectable elements. It is time now to put Rhode Island on the list of [illegible]

Melville W. Fuller—

The nomination of Mr. Fuller to the office of Chief Justice of the supreme court of the United States, the grandest office within the gift of the executive of if not of the nation evidences the thoroughly good intentions of the president to consider [illegible] ability and character beyond [illegible] party affiliations. [illegible] the bar and from among the people and perhaps he has builded better than he knew.

To one who, from his own boyhood, has known Mr Fuller and for fifteen years has practiced at the same bar the appointment seems unusually felicitous in these days when political preferment is often based upon the influence of great corporate interests, or party authority, or the glitter of gilded rather than the gleam of the true metal.

Mr. Fuller is a politician in the noblest sense of the word, loving politics solely for the exercise of the high political duties that devolve upon every true citizen. He is a democrat to the marrow [illegible] in his body, but in no degree [illegible] in his adherence to the principles of Jefferson and Jackson, neither has he ever hesitated to assail the demagogues and hypocrites within his party who cloaked their lust for spoils with the mantle of reform. His disinterestedness [illegible] candor and ability soon placed him at the head of Illinois democrats. As a leader, eminently just and impartial in his treatment of all factions, he has never lost the admiration or confidence of those who have been his party opponents. There was no trickery or questionable practices about his methods. You always knew on just what ground he stood. He had no affiliation with the "boys" in politics. Always [illegible] himself, his ambition was to make prominent the worthy members and motives of his party; his counsels have always been for honesty and purity; his force has only been heard for the right; he has never prostituted his position as a leader to further the unjust aims of any venal clique.

The [illegible] of Mr. Fuller's legal attainments is one easily answered. As in politics, so in law, he is an unquestioned leader. His undisputed ascendency at the bar is not factitious, but due solely to different [illegible] ability, [illegible] and the sterling qualities that make an [illegible] man. Mr. Fuller is an industrious student, a lover of books and a great reader. A sound and safe lawyer, careful and painstaking, a well-aided adviser, a keen disputant, a discerning thinker with views broadened by theories of writers and practical intercourse with the active business and men of a great metropolis. His professional as well as his private life, has been modeled after high standards, and always maintained. Jealously guarding his own good name, his honor and integrity, money could not purchase his talents when the cause was unjust or questionable. He never practised his profession for the love of gain. He looked at the justice and merits of the case, not the fees. His life showed his utter contempt for Lord Brougham's theory that a lawyer is the client's henchman, and he never subjected his honor, dignity or manhood to his client's pocket book.

Mr. Fuller always impressed one as being a man who thoroughly loved justice, and, as was said of Sir Matthew Hale, "that he would do no unjust act for any worldly price or motive."

He is not a specialist. His mind has not been narrowed by set boundaries of study. His large and lucrative law practice runs the whole gamut of possible cases, and the Illinois reports for the last twenty years are full of important cases prosecuted by him, involving new points of law and consequent [illegible] research. He has never allied himself with corporations, though often acting in their behalf, and is admitted to be thoroughly proficient in corporation and constitutional law. His strong, fair-mindedness, his love of "fair play," his candor, his refusal to lend even his name to an unworthy case, or to fight for a client when in the wrong simply because he was his client, his solicitous oversight of his own integrity and honor, kept him from falling into that seductive net of destruction, the glittering, lucrative, yet quasi-suspicious position of a "corporation lawyer," though the temptation was often offered. The interests of the people are not always the interests of corporations and trusts, and it is a hopeful prospect therefore, for the future decisions of the supreme court, that the chief justice comes to the bench fresh from the ranks of the people, and with a mind unbiased by any former associations with corporate monopolies.

Mr. Fuller is about fifty-six years of age, rather short in stature, of a slight figure, with a well formed head, a heavy mustache, gray hair worn long and usually [illegible] His face is earnest and thoughtful, yet sunshine and happiness seem always to play upon it with genial smiles. Easy of approach, yet never inviting undue familiarity, he is a gentleman to rich and poor, and has no thin veneering of frigid dignity that merely reflects some harrowness of character. Of a quick, nervous temperament, a kindly disposition, [illegible] sympathetic and generous his cooling [illegible] never fails of its cheerful effect.

In spite of a somewhat thin voice he has an energy and fullness of expression that carries conviction. It is a pretty difficult task to talk around his reach [illegible] and he does not freshen much a case. He tries a case for all the points that there are in it. Quiet and unruffled he keeps a watch upon [illegible] and few and far between are the lapses of [illegible] or [illegible]

One cannot well forecast the future without some small degree of [illegible] though not necessarily a pessimist. Corporations are, without souls because in the final [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Yesterday morning Officer Shelby arrested a young man for highway robbery. The Denver Evening Press says: "When John A. Logan called the Woody Bros' singing quartette 'The Sweet Singers of the West,' we thought it just a passing compliment for political purposes, but hearing them last night convinces us that Mr. Logan knew what he was talking about." Our people have a rare treat in waiting for them in the coming of the Woody Brothers of Chicago. The Granger Land and Town Co.

Now Offers For Sale the Entire

Town Site of Granger,

EL PASO COUNTY, COLORADO.

GRANGER is situated on the line of the Denver, Texas & Gulf R. R., about 18 miles northeast of Colorado Springs, in the center of the best Agricultural District in Colorado. The rainfall is sufficient to perfect good crops, and irrigation is entirely unnecessary. All the [illegible] land within a radius of twenty-five miles has been taken up by bona fide settlers, and improvements are rapidly being made on all the occupied land.

Granger has one of the best Town Sites in the State. It commands an extended view in every direction. The site is almost perfectly level, with a slight fall to the southeast. Water is obtainable within 10 feet of the surface on the entire Town Site. The streets are all 80 feet in width, and the lots are all 50x150, excepting the business lots, which are 25x150 feet. The town lies on both sides of the railroad. The Surveyed Line of THE CHICAGO AND ROCK ISLAND RAILROAD Runs Parallel with that of the DENVER, TEXAS & GULF RAILROAD through the Center of the Town, and forms a Junction with the latter at this point, and will be the Construction Headquarters of Rock Island Extension in Colorado. Granger is destined to become an important town in the near future by reason of its location. It is an Objective Point on the lines of all the Railroads now heading for the Rocky Mountains, and also from the fact that it is located in a Rich and Fertile Region, where good water is reached at a shallow depth. It is an important Shipping point on the D., T. & G. R. R. for a large section of country. In the matter of business Granger ranks third on the line of the road.

The lots will be sold on the popular Allotment Plan, as follows:

PRICE, $25.00 Each.

The drawing for location, the notice of which will be given, will occur not later than June 1st next, and will be conducted by a committee of citizens selected by the certificate holders. The company will include in the drawing every alternate lot in the entire town site as platted, beginning with lot 1 in each block, reserving only numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 18 and 19 in block 1; number 13 in block 2; numbers 1, 21 and 22 in block 11; numbers 17, 18 and 32 in block 12; numbers 15 and 16 in block 21; number 18 in block 22; number 17 in block 31; numbers 1, 2 and 3 in block 41; and block 23.

All these lots have been sold and deeded. The object in reserving thus each alternate lot throughout the entire plat, and selling the others at the low price of $25, when there is not a lot in the entire site but what is well worth $100 (some of the reserved lots above mentioned have been sold at this figure), is to enhance the value of property reserved by inducing the purchasers to build and improve over the entire plat. After the drawing prices will be advanced on lots reserved. Lots will be for sale for only a limited time at the following places:
